

As a nonprofit grantmaking organization (rather than a for-profit investment firm), our “shareholders” are Arkansans themselves.

Administrative fees are reinvested in our state through foundation-directed initiatives and enable us to research community needs, educate donors about important causes, and provide financial oversight of charitable funds. Because fees support the overall mission of the Community Foundation, they are noted on fund statements as administrative grants.

Charitable Distribution Funds are non-endowed, non-invested distribution funds. The fee is a percentage of each contribution into the fund. Scholarships are not offered as charitable distribution funds; they must be quasi- or fully-endowed.

Quasi-Endowed Funds are established with $100,000 or more and a $50,000 restricted minimum balance for three years. The annual fee is based on the average of the beginning and ending market values for each month. Quasi-endowed funds are invested in the Community Foundation’s longterm investment pool.

Endowments are permanently restricted and invested in the Community Foundation’s long-term investment pool. The annual fee is based on the average of the beginning and ending market values for each month.
